RARE SUBCUTANEOUS TUMOR
2 YEARS LATER
Pleomorphic Hyalinizing Angiectatic Tumor

- rare mesenchymal tumor
- can be locally aggressive
- considered low malignant potential due to propensity for local recurrence
- propensity for subcutaneous tissue involving the extremities
- imaging-ill defined margins, with infiltration of the subcutaneous fat and extension of the tumor along the fascial planes
- treatment of choice wide local excision